It has been an exciting journey for Maxwell Collins Real Estate over the 70 years we've been a member of the Geelong Chamber of Commerce.

From our inception over 100 years ago as Gurr Collins and Davies to our merger in 1993 with Maxwell Real Estate to become Maxwell Collins Real Estate, we have strived to lead the way in providing the best level of real estate service in Geelong and to evolve with technology to offer an unsurpassed experience to our many clients over this long journey.

It has been an important component in our ongoing success to have been a member of the Geelong Chamber of Commerce and to have had the backing of such a long-standing and respected organisation, whose goals so closely mirror our own - namely to pool the knowledge and expertise of Geelong's leading business people with the aim of establishing Geelong as a thriving economic city with flourishing businesses and cutting edge technology.

This in turn attracts investment to our city, both from Federal and State Government in their decisions to locate the head offices of major organisations such as the NDIS, Worksafe and the TAC to Geelong, and from individuals who have identified Geelong as the best place to live and raise a family.

We look forward to servicing the real estate needs of the Geelong community well into the future together with our ongoing association with the Geelong Chamber of Commerce.

We can't help but wonder what the next 70 years has in store for Geelong. But if the first 70 is anything to go by, we envisage Geelong as a major commercial hub, leading the way in health, education and best business practice.
